DRAMATIC JOURNEY MOOTED FOR ROOSEVELT

Across Atlantic in New Cruiser To the Conference

IF DANGER THREATENS

PROF. MOLEY ALMOST CERTAIN TO GO

PROGRESS ON MONETARY SIDE

(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received June 17, 8.10 a.m.)

London, June 16.
The importance attached by President Roosevelt to the success of the World Economic Conference is shown by the startling report from Washington that the President may make a dramatic dash across the Atlantic in the new cruiser, the U.S.S. Indianapolis.

The President is departing tonight for the coast of Massachusetts, where he will board his yacht and indulge in a fortnight's cruise with his sons and old friends.

He intends to board the new cruiser, Indianapolis, at Campo Bello Island on June 30 for a speed run to the Potomac River, but it is strongly rumoured that should the Conference seem on the verge of shipwreck, he will make a dramatic dash to London.

There is another report, with stronger foundation, that Professor Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State and President Roosevelt's most confidential advisor, will be sent to London shortly to lend his efforts to those of the American delegate.

Professor Moley is a member of the so-called "Brains Trust" formed by President Roosevelt to assist in his programme. Professor Moley is said to be largely responsible for the social reform measure.

It is said he is going to London at the instigation of President Roosevelt shortly.—Reuter Copy-right.

MONETARY COMMITTEE.

The Committee of the monetary and financial commission of the World Economic Conference this afternoon decided to recommend to the plenary commission on Monday, the creation of two sub-committees, one on the immediate measures of financial reconstruction, and the other on the permanent measures to be taken for the reestablishment of an international monetary standard.

The first commission will consider the following questions: credit policy, price levels, the limitation of currency, fluctuations, exchange controls, and a resumption of lending.

The second will consider the functions of the central banks, the coordination of their policies, monetary reserves and silver.

EXPERTS CALLED IN.
Governor Cox, the Chairman of the Committee, welcomed the unanimous agreement reached as a happy augury.

The Committee also decided, on the suggestion of Doctor Klenbock, Austria, and the chairman, to invite the President of the Bank for International Settlements and representatives of the financial committee of the League of Nations, now in London, to co-operate with the committee.

TARIFF TRUCE.

It is announced that forty-one nations now signified adhesion to the temporary tariff truce. These nations represent among them approximately eighty per cent, of world trade.

STABILISATION OF CURRENCIES

IMPORTANT TALKS IN LONDON

London, June 16.
Conversations were continued to-day in London between the representatives of the three central banks and of Treasury officials of Britain, France and the United States. The newspapers state that the possibility of reaching a temporary measure of currency stabilisation as a complementary to the tariff truce which holds during the progress of the world conference was explored.—British Wireless.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC

SWEEPS THROUGH SHAMSHUIPO

200 OF LINCOLNS AFFECTED

During the past three weeks a serious influenza epidemic has been raging amongst the men of the Lincolnshire Regiment stationed at Shamshuiipo Camp.

Over 200 men have been confined to their quarters, while a number of the more serious cases had to be sent to hospital.

There have been sick parades of as many as fifty and over on many days.

Prompt attention to the cases by the Army medical authorities has confined the outbreak almost entirely to the men and only one or two cases have been reported amongst the families, but these were of a very mild nature.

At present, it is believed control of the outbreak has been secured and to-day, it is stated, in the whole camp there are only about twenty men still under treatment.

The Shanghai yacht, Chelidon, which left here last Saturday, reached Nagasaki yesterday, completing the 467 miles journey in six days.

This is the Chelidon's third trip to Nagasaki. The crew is composed of the German owner of the yacht, Mr. Aust, three Britons and two Chinese Indians.—Reuter.

ORGANISED MARKETS

MR. BRAGA AND THE N. T. FARMER

AN OUTLINE OF POSSIBILITIES

That the establishment of a well-organised system for the marketing of New Territories produce would materially benefit not only the farmers but potential consumers, was the view expressed by the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, in an interview with the Telegraph.

Mr. Braga has asked the Government to set up a committee to go into this question and he hinted that his main objective was to eliminate the middleman's profit. "This is no new question," said Mr. Braga when our representative approached him. "Several years ago, when I was on the Sanitary Board I raised the question of market licences with special reference to facilities that might be afforded for marketing New Territory produce. In Hongkong and Kowloon. When the question of building a new and larger market at Yaumatei was brought up the suggestion was made that it might be possible to provide a large depot in such a market for produce in bulk, transported from the New Territories." THE KING WINS AT ASCOT

HARDWICKE STAKES FOR LIMELIGHT

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received June 17, 8.55 a.m.)

London, June 16.
His Majesty the King scored a success at Ascot to-day, when his horse, Limelight, won the last important race of the meeting, the Hardwicke Stakes.

Limelight, at 7 to 1, beat Nitsichin (16 to 2) by a neck, whilst a shorthead separated Nitsichin and Donnasol (100 to 8) for third place. It was one of the most thrilling races of the meeting. There were eight starters.—Reuter.

WANG CHING-WEI RUMOURS

DENIED BY NANKING OFFICIAL

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received June 17, 10.10 a.m.)

Shanghai, June 17.
In the course of a statement last night, a high Chinese official who had just arrived from Nanking, denied the rumour which is prevalent in Shanghai that Wang Ching-wei has tendered his resignation.

Questioned regarding the reported declaration of independence by the South-West Political Council, the official said there was no truth whatever in the report.

He stated that relations were as pleasant as could be hoped and that the Canton authorities are still accepting Nanking's mandates.—Reuter.

In the Central Police Court this morning, Mr. Wynne-Jones sent a Chinese to prison for six weeks, for the theft of a bicycle of £3, from a deaf and dumb Chinese compatriot. Defendant had been entrusted to book complainant's fare to Swatow and had left him on the rocks. His Worth directed enquiries to be made with a view to paying complainant's passage to Swatow from the Poor Box.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY

RESTRICTIONS ON LOAN ABROAD

London, June 16.
The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, in a letter to the Secretary of the London Stock Exchange and to the leading banks and financial houses, says that this country is not in his judgment at present in a position to invest large sums at long term in foreign countries, and he requests those to whom his appeal is addressed to assist him in discouraging such transactions.—British Wireless.

AIR FORCE DISPLAY

UNIQUE MACHINES TO BE FLOWN

DIESEL-ENGINED CRAFT

Among the machines in the Royal Air Force display to be held on June 24th will be two standard types of military aircraft fitted with engines consuming heavy oil which is less inflammable, cheaper and less bulky than petrol.

Its advocates believe that the introduction of diesel engines will mark a revolution in aviation.

One of the machines is fitted with a Rolls-Royce water cooled engine and is the first diesel-aero-engine to pass the Air Ministry type test, involving fifty hours' full throttle running. The other has an air-cooled British Phoenix engine, the most powerful of its kind in world.

Although weighing only 980 pounds complete, it produces 380 horse power. The Wapitite machine in which this engine is fitted has climbed to over 16,000 feet and the engine has been run for over 180 hours.

Another prominent exhibit in the display, which as usual, will afford a striking demonstration of the progress of aviation research, is a Short six-engined flying boat weighing 38 tons; the largest military aircraft in the world.

The world's fastest military aircraft will be seen in the modified Hawker Fury aeroplanes, capable of over 260 miles hourly.

FEARS FOR MATTERN

FAILS TO ARRIVE IN NOME

EXHAUSTION OF PETROL

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received June 17, 8.55 a.m.)

New York, June 16.
Fears are entertained for the safety of the famous American long distance flier, Mr. James Mattern.

Nothing has been heard of the airman since he left Kharbarovsk on Wednesday evening in his second attempt to fly to Nome, in Alaska.

His petrol would have been exhausted several hours ago.

Fears are accentuated by the fact that Mattern seems to have been suffering from over-exhaustion ever since his dramatic flight across the Atlantic and on to Moscow.

GRUELLING FLIGHT.

He seemed to be in good fettle in Moscow but afterwards he was compelled to rest up, both in Omsk and Belyoye. After a gruelling flight from Belyoye to Kharbarovsk, he was so exhausted that he was unable to answer questions, though physicians who examined him thought that the only thing wrong was lack of sleep.

On Monday night he set out from Kharbarovsk for Nome and returned nearly twenty-four hours later, being forced back by a sleet storm and fogs.

NOTHING SEEN.

After a brief rest, he set out again for Nome on Wednesday night and should have arrived in Nome by nightfall on Thursday, but nothing has been seen of his plane anywhere.—Reuter.

IRONY OF FATE

Traded Player Helps to Beat Old Club

New York, June 16.
By ironic coincidence, Leslie, whom the New York Giants traded for Clark and Odoul of Brooklyn, scored a homer against his old team to-day and contributed towards their defeat by Brooklyn.

Chicago rattled up nine runs against Pittsburgh and won comfortably, whilst two other fixtures were postponed through rain.

Scores as called by Reuter were:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York 1 8 2
Brooklyn 3 6 1
(Leslie homered for Brooklyn.)

Chicago 9 0 0
Pittsburgh 1 7 1
(De Marco homered for Chicago.)

The Philadelphia v Boston match and the Detroit v Cincinnati American League encounter, were postponed on account of rain.

ROOSEVELT AS DICTATOR

CONTROLLED ECONOMY BILL PASSED

WIDE POWERS GIVEN

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received, June 17, 8.20 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, JUNE 16.
PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS NOW A VIRTUAL DICTATOR BY VIRTUE OF THE POWERS WHICH WERE CONFERRED UPON HIM BY CONGRESS BEFORE ADJOURNING, ALBEIT LONG AFTER THE PRESIDENT DESIRED TO GET RID OF THEM.

As he signed three of the most important Bills passed by Congress, the Industrial Control Bill, the Bank Reform Bill and the Railroad Reorganisation Bill, President Roosevelt remarked that more important legislation had been enacted to-day than on any other day in American history.—Reuter.

END TO PRESENT-DAY CAPITALISM

In circles close to the President it is considered, in fact, that the most important work of internal reconstruction contemplated by the Roosevelt Administration has already received the sanction of Congress, although the President has been in office a short three months.

As one observer puts it: Slowly but steadily the pieces of the gigantic jigsaw puzzle at Washington are falling into place; and as they do it begins to be possible to get an idea of what the outlines of our new society are going to be like.

APPROPRIATION BILL

Washington, June 16.
President Roosevelt has signed the Appropriation Bill, providing for expenditure of over U.S. $3,600,000,000 on the Muscle Shoals Tennessee Valley development scheme and a general programme of public works.—Reuter.

"TICKLISH" SHIPPING INCIDENT

Refusal to Work a Ship in Canton

"It is a very ticklish subject, and best left alone," said a Hongkong shipping official when interviewed this morning on the refusal of wharf coolies and stevedores to unload the C. N. C. steamer Shantung at Canton yesterday.

"Work is going on as usual on the company's ships here, and there is not likely to be any reflection of the incident in Hongkong," he added. "This is just an isolated incident involving no question of a labour dispute at all."

The strike, which was ordered by the Chinese Seamen's Union, is believed to arise from the recent assault on a Chinese seaman by an officer of the steamer Woosung also the C.N.S. line, and unless the mediations of party organs are successful, it is possible that other ships of the line going into Canton, will be affected.

It is said that when stevedores and coolies at Fah Hin Hok left work and returned to the local quarters of the Union, some of the Chinese crew also quit the vessel.

STOP PRESS

New London, June 16.
Harvard defeated Yale in the annual boat-race.—Reuter.

WELFARE OF NATION

If we now are demanding that the welfare of the nation as a whole be taken into account from top to bottom of the business and financial structure which is pre-occupied with the programme of Washington amounts to—well, we are going radical; we are merely trying to adapt capitalism to the requirements of a new society.

There lies the day's great opportunity. This country, first to prove

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Simplicity—With Elegance

JACKET AND CAPE GIVE BRIDAL GOWN DISTINCTION

BY JOAN SAVOY

Wedding Gowns for the June bride have extravagant elegance, even though they appear classically simple to the eye.

Da. ity ruchings, exquisite hand seaming, tuckings, unusual designing all join to dress June brides up in a new manner.

Net wedding dresses are new and lovely. Even though models are shown in satin or crepe, the better stores will humour a bride's whim and clothe her in diaphanous net for the day of days.

One of the loveliest bridal gowns yet seen has a seemingly simple little jacket that buttons from a sloping-up waistline clear to the square front neck with tiny buttons. The back of it has a bustle, organ-pleated at the top and flaring just enough to show how slim the bride really is.

The sleeves are long, tight to above the elbow where they make graduated puffs that arrive at their fullest just before being attached with a pin pleated ruching heading. The same fine pin pleatings make a ruching edge down the flaring panels of the train and edge the bottom of the skirt.

The best touch, possibly, is the very chic little cap which holds the tulle veil, a tiny cap which sits high on the head, with the pin-tucked ruching standing up about it, and veil coming down over the forehead, then sweeping down the back.

The bridesmaids' costumes for this wedding party are quite as fascinating as the wedding gown itself.

Fashioned of charterreuse net, they are made with moulded lines, a flounced shoulder cape of net, finely-pleated, with a heading. Then there is a lovely cascade of the net plaiting which starts wide at the neckline, then graduates to narrower pleats as it nears the waistline in the back where it turns up and then cascades down the other side. The back of the charterreuse net dress has a little train.

There is a diminutive bridesmaid's hat, of matching crepe, with a little veil that stands out all the way around.

EVERYDAY CAKES

Two New Dishes for the Cook-Boy

FIG CAKE

Grease a cake tin measuring about 7 in. in diameter and 3 1/2 in. in depth, and line it with greased paper. Sift together two breakfastcupfuls flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, and 1/4 teaspoonful salt, then rub 7 oz. margarine into these dry ingredients.

Now add 6 oz. sugar, the grated rind of a lemon, and 1/2 lb. figs, chopped, and mix all to a rather stiff consistency with two beaten eggs and about a teaspoonful milk.

Lastly, add a dessertspoonful lemon juice, beat all together very thoroughly, and turn into the lined tin.

Bake in a rather hot oven for the first twenty minutes, then lower the temperature slightly, and continue baking for another hour, or till a skewer comes out clean.

Mixed Fruit Cake.

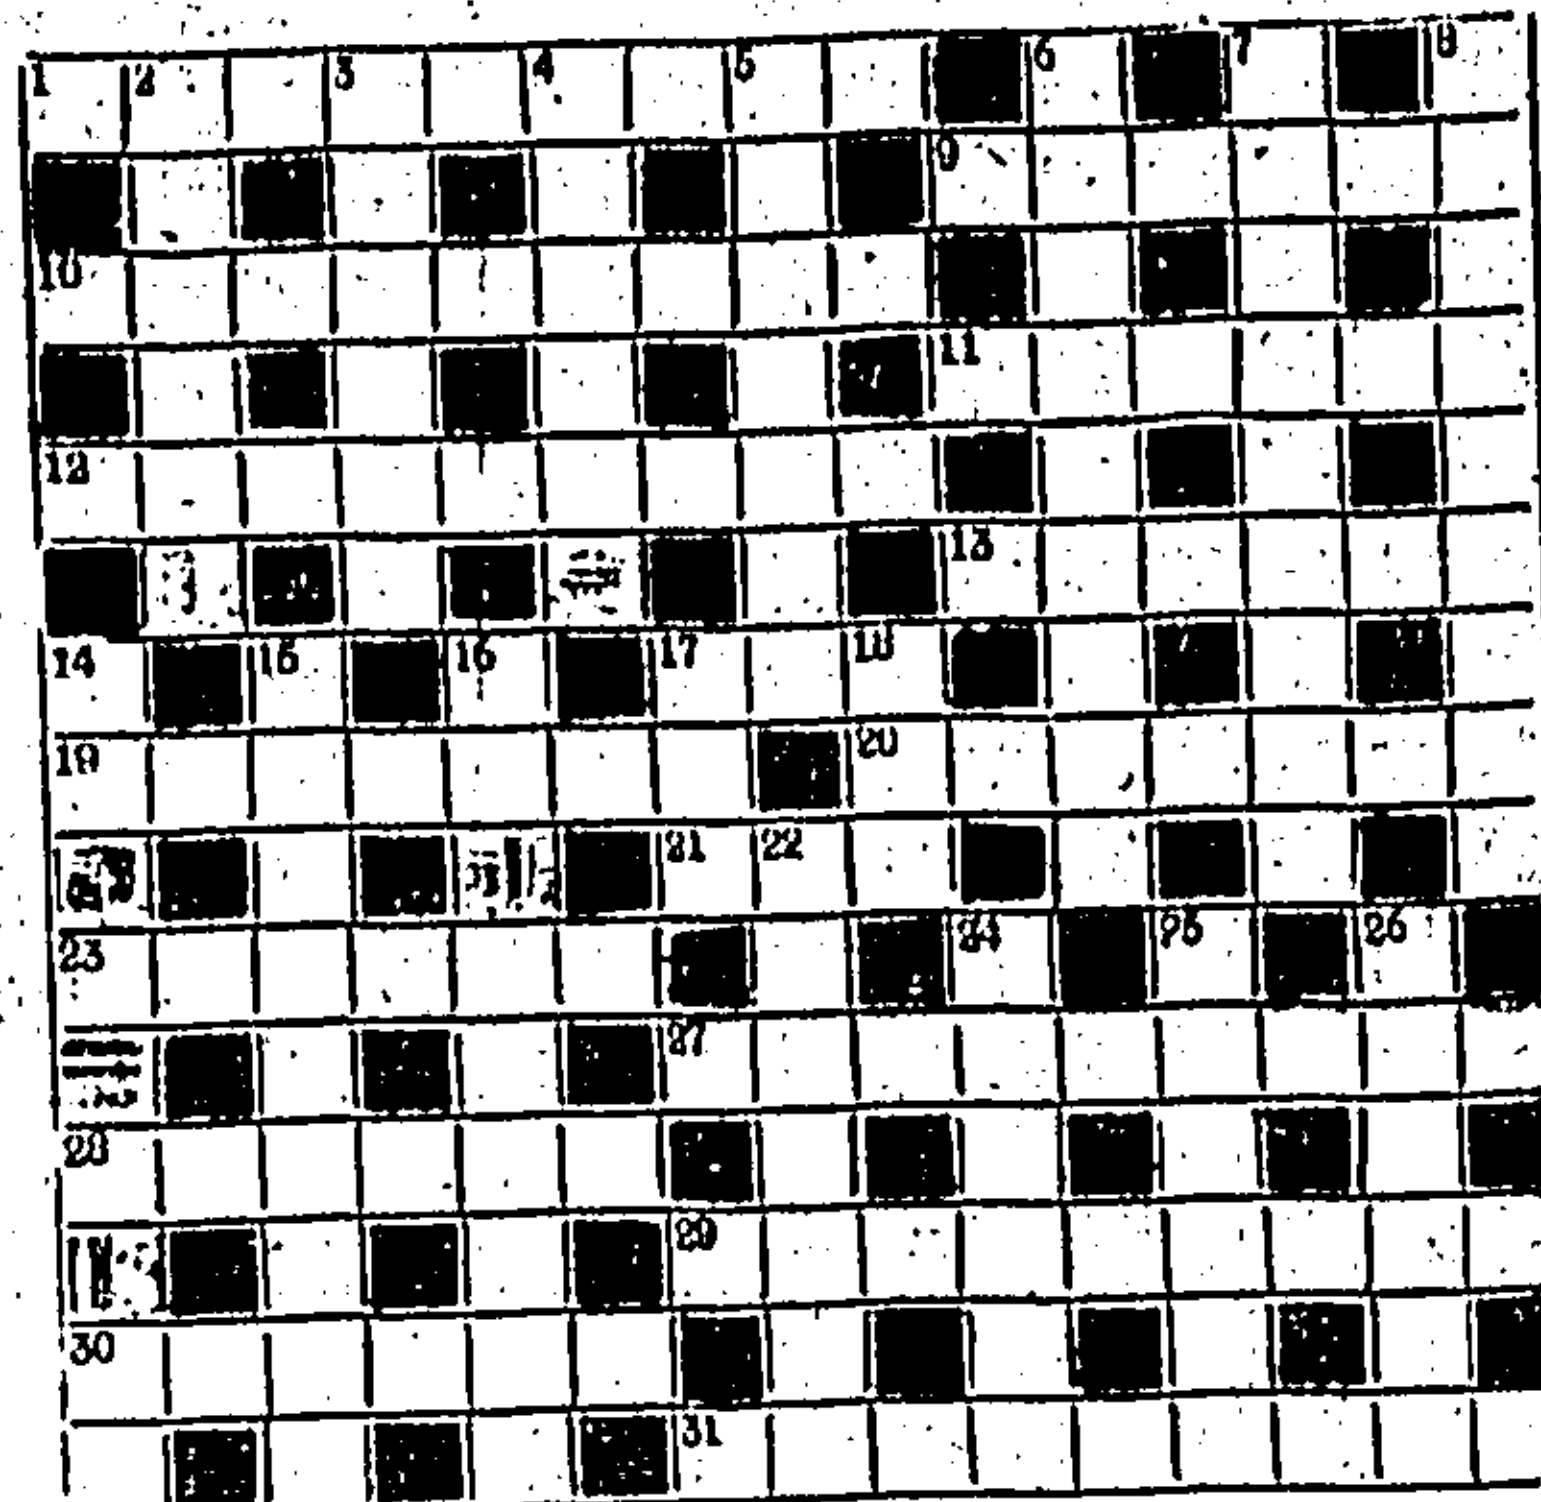

Grease a 7 in. by 3 1/2 in. cake tin and line it with greased paper.

Sift together three teaspoonfuls flour, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, a teaspoonful baking powder, and a teaspoonful mixed spice, then rub in 6 oz. dripping, lard, or margarine.

Pour in a beaten egg and a tablespoonful treacle, and add enough milk to make the mixture just soft enough to drop from the spoon.

Beat well, turn into the tin, and bake in a rather hot oven at first, slightly decreasing the heat after twenty minutes. Probably 1 1/2 hours in the oven will be enough, but test with a skewer.

MONNIE O'DARE, who works in a Delaware drug store and helps to support her small brother, younger sister and mother, is in love with DAN CAULIGAN, whose parents are wealthy. CHARLES EUSTACE, handsome newcomer in town, befriends her and her brother, BILL, who works in a garage.
Monnie suspects SANDRA LAWRENCE, who pretends to be her friend, of undermining her with Dan. Bill plans to marry ANGIE GIL-LEN, who works in a candy shop, as soon as she gets a divorce. Dan telephones, asking Monnie to see him, but she refuses. Monnie works about 10-year-old KAY, discontented at home. Charles Eustace invites them to a dinner party.

CHAPTER IX

Sandra pursed her lips, watching her slim, cool reflection in the glass and approving it. Her frock was of white lace, deliberately ingenious. Sandra was not the ingenue—far from it—but occasionally she chose the role.

Her soft, dark hair, worn just long enough to make a series of becoming ringlets above her graceful nape, was charmingly arranged.
The faintest trace of mauve outlined her large eyes and her lip
rouge was the colour of a June rose.

A horn sounded below stairs and she snatched up a brief wrap of green silk and hurried out of the room. On the stairs she passed a maid in trimmest black.

"I'll be late to-night, Hetty.
Tell Father," Sandra directed.
The servant's small dark eyes flickered at her mistress for a moment with a hint of antagonism, instantly quenched. Her reply was perfectly respectful.

"Very well, Miss Sandra."

There was the rustle of soft draperies, the hint of an elusive scent on the stairs. A door slammed and gears clashed noisily.
A motor purred away into the summer evening.

Lilac and rose and blue stained the western sky. The air was delightful—warm, yet fresh—and as the car slipped westward the odors of summer night in the country drifted to the nostrils of the two occupants of the car.

"Nice," purred Sandra, slipping her long, white hand, with its red jewels of pointed nails, around her escort's arm.

Dan Cauligan grinned down at her.

"Lady, you said it!" That was Dan. The argot of the man in the street served him for speech. In spite of all his background, and training Dan talked, Sandra reflected lightly, rather like a roueabout. She didn't mind. She liked everything about him—his bigness, his frown, his masculinity.

Liked? Well, that was a mild word.

"Who's going to be there? At Charles' place, I mean," she inquired idly.

Dan shrugged. "Dunno. Probably the Waterman crowd."

"Oh, I don't think so. I hope not," protested Sandra. "They're awfully dull. Oh, Danny, if they are you'll have to take me away early. I shall perish of boredom."

"Wait and see," advised Dan.
Sandra slumped luxuriously in the roadster's low seat. After a moment she demanded, "Give me a cigarette, Danny. Like an angel."

Without removing his eyes from the road, Dan produced a packet, lighted a cigarette and put it between the pouting lips of the girl.

Sandra narrowed her eyes, squinting through the smoke. Most men took advantage of such tiny intervals to snatch a kiss or two. It wasn't—it couldn't be—that Dan thought her unattractive. She abandoned that notion as preposterous. No, it must be some quaint notion of chivalry he had. Or—she caught her breath involuntarily at the thought—perhaps some fantastic idea of loyalty to—to someone else.

"Absurd," she muttered to herself.

"What did you say, Beautiful?"
drawled the object of her thoughts.
She patted his coat sleeve pos-sessively. "Nothing."

They drove on in silence for another minute. Then Sandra said suddenly, confidentially, "Remember what we talked about yesterday, Dan?"

A slow red burned under the man's deep tan and his voice sounded embarrassed. "Guess I said too much. Didn't mean to rave on so but Mother burned me up at lunch. I had to talk to someone."

"I know, Danny dear," Sandra was all gentle understanding.
"It's difficult. It's terribly so.
But—has it ever occurred to you that perhaps your mother's right?"

Dan slowed the car a little,
turning to stare at her. "About Monnie, you mean? But I thought —but you said—" He seemed bewildered.

"I know, Dan. I'm terribly fond of Monnie. You know that. She's had a difficult time. She works hard. She's a splendid girl. We all know it. But here's the point—are you two suited? Is it worth all the fuss and fighting it's sure to cause in your family? Remember, Dan, your father's awfully proud of you. He's expecting great things. You'll have a position to maintain some day. Not just here but in Cleveland—in New York. You might be—why, Dan, there's no reason at all why you shouldn't do something really big!
In politics, or something like that,"
Her eyes widened.

"What's that got to do with Monnie?" Dan wanted to know.

Sandra hesitated. "Monnie's all right," she admitted slowly. "But —it's the family, Dan. They're—after all, we might as well face facts—they're nobody. Her brother works in a garage. Her young sister's rather wild, I hear.

It's just not the sort of thing that would sound awfully good later on if a man were to go in for public life."

"Whoever said I was going in for it?" asked Dan, mildly humorous. But Sandra could see the idea had appealed to him. She pressed the point.

"All these things seem so unimportant now," she said, gently judicious. "A man doesn't know at 22 what he wants to be in 10 years. He has to plan—look ahead—or someone else has to do it for him. Many splendid men," she reminded him awfully, "have found their lives all warped and twisted because they'd chosen the wrong sort of wives."

"But Monnie isn't—" Dan began protesting.

"I know, Dan. I know. Haven't
I," asked Sandra, smiling ruefully,
"done everything possible to help Monnie? Not that I think it's done much good, really. I'm afraid, deep down, she doesn't honestly like me."

She sighed and brushed at her eyes lightly with a whisp of chiffon and lace.

"No, Danny, dear," she continued, still in that dulcet, sisterly tone.
"I can see both sides of the question. I see yours and Monnie's and I see your parents', who are proud of you and want the best.
How can they be sure it's not just a boy and girl infatuation? How can anyone of us know it isn't?"

Dan growled something unintelligible and swerved his car into the driveway curving before the little old stone and timber house where Charles Eustace lived.

"Don't be cross, Danny-boy," pleaded Sandra prettily as they came to a halt under the porte cochere. "You know I want the best for you, too, don't you?"

She was very close to him.
Dan, hurt, puzzled and somehow definitely annoyed, stared down at the pretty face lifted to his. Before he knew what was happening his lips were pressed ardently to Sandra's provocative ones. There was a sigh and then Sandra slipped out of his grasp and through the door.

"Danny, I can't imagine what's getting into us," she breathed, scandalized.

"I'm sorry—didn't mean—"
muttered the man, following her.
In Sandra's long-lashed eyes was a suppressed glimmer of triumph.

Monnie felt her heart stand still.
She had been in the embrasure overhanging the drive, watching the sunset. She had been utterly unprepared for the shock of seeing Sandra arrive with Dan. For an instant, not meaning to, she had stared at the pair below. Then she had seen Dan's face hover for an instant close to the girl's—had seen the sudden, brief but passionate kiss that followed. She felt sick and faint. Her blood hummed in her ears. Where should she go—what should she do to escape?

She turned, like a hunted thing.
There was a sharp rat-a-tat at Charles' knocker—now. The servant was hurrying in response.
None of the people in the little fireside group—neither Kay, sparklingly pretty in her old pink cragdile, nor Charles Eustace, the host, nor his New York friend, Webster Hallam—had witnessed the tableau. Monnie alone knew what had passed between Sandra and Dan just before the opening of the door.

She braced herself to meet them.
"Hello, Dan!"

She hardly knew her own voice.
It sounded gay, brittle, insouciant.
Dan's eyes travelled to her face, stayed there, wondering. Dan didn't look ashamed, embarrassed
—only surprised.

"Hello, Monnie. This is nice."
The shadow of annoyance crossed Sandra's mobile countenance and was instantly erased.

"Monnie, darling. What fun!"
Sandra was more effusive than usual.

"That, thought Monnie, was her guilty conscience.

"Cocktails, everybody!" Charles Eustace, very splendid in his white flannels and double-breasted blue coat, held up the shaker. "That is, everybody but Miss Kay. She's a baby and can only have orange juice."

Kay pouted without really meaning it. Monnie, usually so concerned over all that happened to her young sister, scarcely heard.
She was in a maze—she scarcely knew what to do or to say. Sandra and Dan! Then it was true. It was true! Her instinct had warned her, time after time, and her instinct had been right.

"Traitor, traitor!" she cried in her heart. Rage made her calm.
Almost without realizing it, she drained the small glass her host had put into her hand. "It's very mild," she heard him say, through a dimness and a roaring as of waters. She heard her own careless laugh and in a mirror beyond saw, as in a dream, the reflection of a bronze-haired girl with curving red lips and eyes that blazed with some deep inner emotion.

"Here's to you!" Charles Eustace said, saluting her. He drank.
He offered her his arm. "Will you let me take you in to dinner?"

"LET US GET TO WORK"

London, June 16.
The World Economic Conference to-day embarked on the serious business phase of its sessions.

In the morning the inauguration of the Monetary Committee was presided over by the Chairman, Mr. James Cox, who in a brief and business-like speech appealed for patience and understanding, but with maximum treatment and minimum talk, and the encouragement of public faith by an intelligently sustained effort.

"Gentlemen, let us now get to work," he concluded.

A similar expeditious atmosphere prevailed at the opening session of the Economic Commission, presided over by Dr. Collin of Holland, who aroused applause
by announcing that already "we have had the general speeches and can do without them here."

He enumerated groupings under which the discussions will proceed.

For first consideration, general trade restrictions will take their attention, and secondly, other factors, like subsidies, will be discussed. Thirdly, the coordination of production and marketing, especially of foodstuffs, will be treated.

Both Committees adjourned until Monday and in the meantime will put in intensive work arranging their agenda.

THE TAIMOSHAN

REACHES KEELUNG ON TRIP TO ENGLAND

The yacht Taimoshan, in which five officers of the Royal Navy are sailing to England via the Panama Canal, reached Keelung, Formosa, on June 5. She sailed from Hongkong on May 31. The Yacht is reported to have left Keelung on June 8 or 9, and is heading for Yokohama.

Between Swatow and Amoy, the Taimoshan encountered strong head and variable winds. Her best day's sailing was when she covered about 180 miles.

The adventurers aboard her are—Lieutenant R. E. D. Ryder, of H.M.S. Olympus, 4th Submarine Flotilla; Lieutenant P. C. Francis, of H.M.S. Otus; Surg.-Lieutenant
C. Ommannoy-Davis, of H.M.S.
Bridgewater; Lieut.-Commander
M. Sherwood, of H.M.S. Hermes;
and Lieutenant G. S. Salt, of H.M.S. Oswald. Should conditions prove satisfactory, they hope to reach England at the end of March next year. The Taimoshan, which was designed by Mr. H. S. Rouse, in consultation with Mr. E. Cock, Chief Manager of the Kowloon
Docks, where she was constructed, is of the type of yacht which is being developed for ocean racing.

OPIUM IN BASKET

CHINESE ALLEGED TO BE IN POSSESSION

Choung Kwai, who appeared before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon on a charge of being in possession of raw opium, was discharged after evidence had been given concerning the case.

Inspector Booker prosecuted, while Mr. F. X. D'Almada appeared for the defendant.

In outlining the case, Inspector Booker said that at 3 p.m. on June 8 defendant, with another man not in custody, entered a vegetable garden in Homantin Street, off Waterloo Road, and asked the complainant to look after a rattan basket, which contained opium. The defendant then ran away leaving the complainant with the basket. Defendant was later arrested and gave an address which was afterwards found to be fictitious. When searched, defendant had in his possession $8.30 in Cantopese money and $1.35 Hongkong currency.

Basket Containing Opium.

Lai Sun Tai, complainant, who owned the vegetable garden in Homantin Street, gave evidence that while in the garden on June 8 a Chinese, not defendant, entered carrying the rattan basket and asked if he might leave it, telling witness that it contained opium. Witness threatened to call the police and the man ran away, dropping the basket on the road. It was then picked up by defendant who was arrested by Tai Mun, a Chinese detective.

Mr. D'Almada: When you blew your whistle and the man ran away, you saw him throw away the basket?—Yes.

Mr. D'Almada: And the defendant picked up the basket?—Yes.

Mr. D'Almada: He made no attempt to run away?—No, he walked along slowly with the basket.

The Chinese detective and a friend, Wah Tak-kwong, who were passing Waterloo Road when they heard the police whistle, gave evidence of seeing complainant with the whistle and defendant walking with the basket.

Defendant's Evidence.

Defendant in the witness-box said that on June 8 he came from Hongkong and in Shantung Street met his friend, who was carrying the basket. They went to the garden in Homantin Street and his friend spoke to the gardener. Witness then saw the gardener blowing his police whistle and the other man running away, leaving his case. Witness picked up the case but was stopped by the Chinese detective.

Mr. D'Almada said that from the evidence there was ample proof of defendant's innocence. When the detective asked him to open the basket he did so and, according to the first witness, defendant walked slowly away with the basket, even when the police whistle was blown.

Mr. D'Almada thought that anyone, even the Magistrate, could pick up a basket containing opium, but that did not show guilty knowledge. If the defendant had dropped the basket and run away, then the case could have been proved.

The Magistrate decided to discharge defendant.

NEW AIRWAY

HONGKONG, SHANGHAI TO BE LINKED

"On July 1 an air mail service from Shanghai to Hongkong, and Hongkong to Canton, will be inaugurated," Major James Doolittle, famous American aviator, told a gathering in Canton at the last Thursday Club luncheon. "At the present time," said Major Doolittle, "China National Airways operates two lines, one from Shanghai to Peking and the other from Shanghai to Chungking. The latter was extended to Chengtu on June 1.

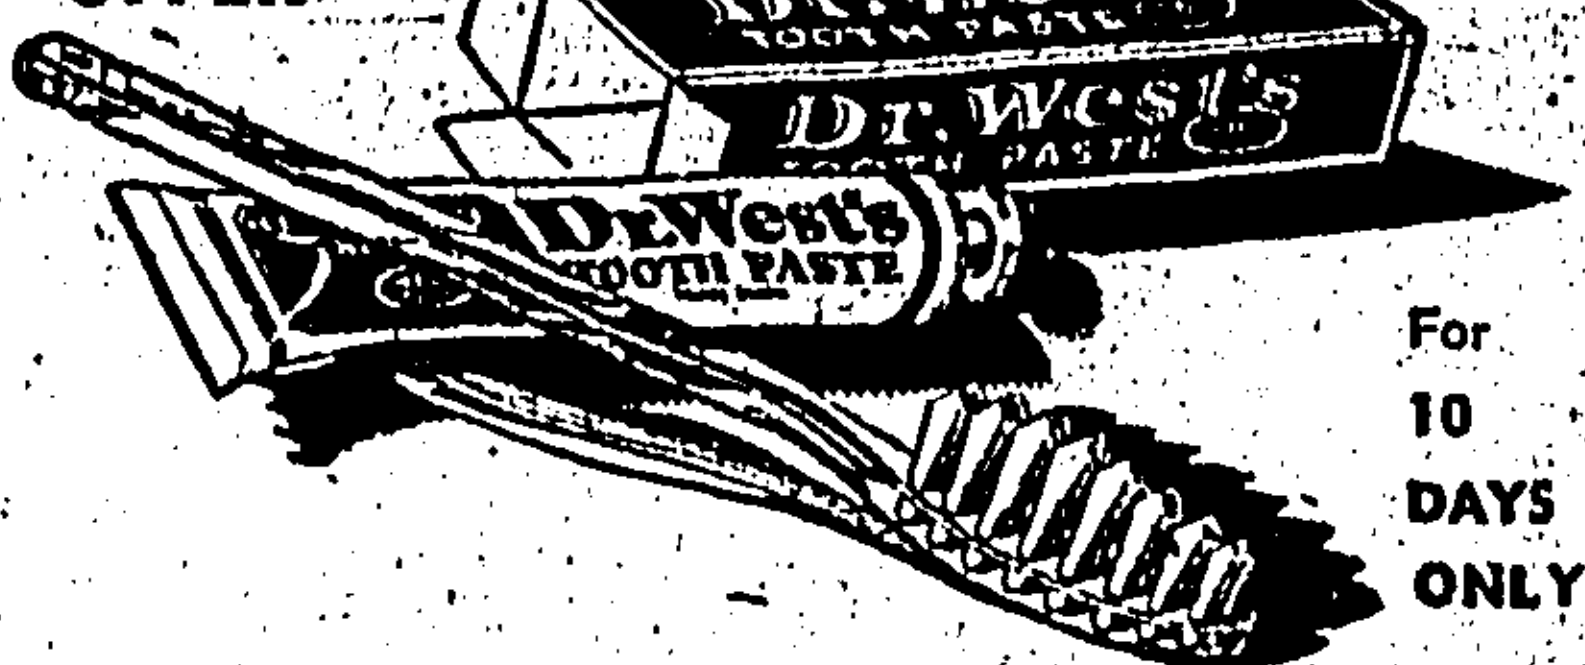

"From July 1, 1933, to July 1, 1934, the present schedule calls for a million miles of operation by Sino-American interests. Through co-operation with Imperial Airways, Canton, Hongkong, Amoy, Bangkok and Rangoon will be linked. Feeder lines will be Canton, Yunnan, Kwangsi and Kweichow.

"When the Hongkong-Shanghai service is in operation, Hongkong will be but four hours flying distance from Shanghai, instead of the present two days by fast boat."

Major Doolittle pointed out that the capitals of Europe and the great cities of America were closer in point of time than towns in the same province in China. Five foreign countries, he said, were co-operating in the interests of commercial aviation. They were France, Germany, Holland, Britain and America. To be successful, the co-operation of China was essential.

For an air service to be a success, he continued, a Government subsidy was necessary. As it was impossible to meet expenses from passenger fare alone, he instanced the case of the United States Government, which was still paying premium for speed in mail transportation.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET EASY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was easy yesterday. Business done: 5,710,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—After a sharp decline the market rebounded near the close due to heavy short covering and the decision to omit the stabilization committee to peg the dollar during the World Economic Conference which is seen as factor making for extension of the inflation programme here and which could boost commodity and stock prices.

THE ARMY GOLF CHAMPION

HONOUR WON BY CHINA'S 1930 TITLE HOLDER

The Army Golf Championship, played on the course of the Royal Cinque Ports Club, at Deal, was won by Lieut. H. S. Mitchell, of The Green Howards, whose aggregate of 155 strokes over the holder Lieut. R. N. Reeves, who finished second.

Lieut. Mitchell will be well remembered by Shanghai golfers, for when he was stationed here with his regiment in 1930, he won the China Amateur Championship. Shortly after this, he attained a tendon when hurdlings in an Army athletic meeting and for over a year it was touch-and-go whether he would be invalided out of the Service. His many friends in Shanghai and elsewhere, will be very glad to know that apparently he is fit and well again.

The new champion won the Boys' Golf Championship in 1922 and the championship of Egypt in 1929. In the opinion of many of the leading experts, had he not had to go abroad with his Regiment, but instead had been able to give his time to more serious golf, he easily would have been one of the best players at Home—including the professionals. Although comparatively small stature, and with a very fast and short back-swing, he is a colossal hitter.

SHANGHAI BOXING ASSOCIATION

Mr. William Z. L. Sung, Chinese and Mr. T. Iffrata, Japanese. None of these men really need any introduction to the Shanghai public.

The co-secretaries of the association will be Mr. C. W. Hampson and Mr. Donald K. King, both these men well known, the first as secretary of the Shanghai Football Association and the Shanghai Cricket Club and the last named as manager of the Shanghai Amateur Baseball Club.

PARKES AS MATCHMAKER

Mr. G. H. Parkes, former boxing instructor of the Shanghai Public School and one of the moving spirits of the now defunct Shanghai Amateur Boxing Association, will act as matchmaker, in which capacity he will be assisted by Mr. A. Herzberg. Bill Tingle, who has been connected with many local amateur cards it is understood will also lend a helping hand to Mr. Parkes and Mr. Herzberg.

It has been stated that the association does not intend to exist with a view of making enormous profits, but it is intended from the proceeds of each card to donate a percentage to charity and also to create a fund so as to be able in the future to erect a permanent arena and also to have own training quarters.

LAWN BOWLS.

D. Gow Eliminated By G. E. F. Thompson.

OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP.

In a close and exciting match, G. E. F. Thompson, of the Kowloon Bowling Green, eliminated D. Gow, a club mate, at King's Park yesterday afternoon from the lawn bowls singles championship by 21 shots to 20 after 25 heads had been played.

Throughout the match the scoring was on the low side with singles on practically every head until towards the end when Gow scored a three which Thompson subsequently followed up with a three and a four. Gow had the lead from the opening heads but Thompson levelled the scores at eight-all. On the 10th head Gow scored a three, the first of the match. Thompson replied with a similar count and after each player had scored in turn the totals stood at 16-all on the 22nd head.

After Gow had scored a two he attempted to dislodge his opponent on the next head when Thompson was lying but subsequently gave away a count of four. By scoring a couple on the following head Gow made the scores 20-all and then proceeded to hit two shots at the last head with his third wood. Thompson skillfully drew the shot and qualified for the third round.

A. E. Carey has been conceded a walk over by C. E. Elliot-Heywood who has scratched from the competition.

A STABILISED CURRENCY

BANKERS' CURE FOR WORLD'S ILLS

TASK FOR LONDON CONFERENCE

Major Walter Elliot, the Minister of Agriculture, was the chief guest of the British Bankers' Association at its annual dinner held in London last month.

Mr. Rupert E. Beckett, President of the Association, who proposed the toast of the Government, said that the latest step taken by America in renewing the suspension of gold payments had left a world wondering and bewildered.

"It is difficult for an outsider to gain much light from the observations of responsible people over there," he said, "but the point that emerges from the present welter is the need throughout the world of a basis of currency stabilisation, and it is devoutly to be hoped that the World Conference to meet in London next month may address itself to this supreme problem with all the assiduity it can command."

If a means could be found to effect stabilisation of the leading currencies in terms of gold, and we were asked to accept a basis of exchange which past experience showed to be not incompatible with our means and prospects, then he personally would be in favour of such a course.

This country had now accumulated gold to some sixty-six millions in excess of the figure at which we rested after we made the payment to America last December, and though we still had a managed currency he much preferred a managed currency with some gold behind it—though not attached to it—than a managed currency with nothing but management behind it.

BRITISH CONFIDENCE.

Major Elliot, in reply said that we had seen Germany fall into a revolution which was only beginning, and no man could say how far that revolution would take that great country. We had seen the United States swept by the bank panic from coast to coast.

"I shall not forget the day after we came off the gold standard looking up Whitehall to see if there were any crowds outside the bank which is close to the Treasury, and in which I myself managed to keep my modest overdraft," he continued. But the whole nation was going on as though the most ordinary proceeding was that Great Britain should suspend payment on the gold standard.

If we could maintain that confidence in ourselves and the interplay between politics and finance which had been for 200 years one of the features of the Government of this country, we should weather any storm, however hard it might blow.

It had fallen to Great Britain to embark on a new stabilisation of the exchange of goods which was not of less importance than the exchange of money. Ignorant men, men in a hurry, would condemn trade pacts as they would condemn any arrangement that might be come to, but unless they were made it was hopeless to expect any recovery in the trade of the world.

PRISON CELL SUICIDE

AMAZING DISCLOSURES AT AN INQUEST

It was disclosed at an Oxford inquest recently that Sydney Thorpe, a 38-years-old carpenter, of Masbro'-road, West Kensington, W., had committed suicide in a prison cell by drugging himself with morphine while awaiting trial on remand.

Evidence was given that after his death a slit was discovered in the lining of his overcoat, showing that the drug may have been concealed in the coat.

A remarkable letter written by Thorpe in the cell, alleging that while on remand in custody he had received a "tanning" from the police before being charged, was also read.

LETTER TO WIDOW.

Twice previously the inquest had been adjourned by the Oxford coroner, Mr. H. F. Galpin. A verdict of Suicide while Temporarily Insane was returned.

Thorpe was arrested with two other men at Aylesbury on April 10 and charged with being a suspected person and being on a racecourse to commit a felony. The case was adjourned and the other two men were released on bail of £25.

As Thorpe could not find sureties, he was taken to Oxford prison for a week. He was found unconscious in his cell on April 12 and died the same day.

The following extracts were read from a letter which Mrs. Winifred Thorpe, the widow, said she received from her husband on April 12:

"I am here [in prison] for nothing at all. I had a few words at the station, and refused to turn my pockets out till they told me the charge. I got a tanning, but the sergeant also received one back in the jaw with interest.

"What is the good of my living? Keep this letter, it may be the last."

Mrs. Thorpe said that she asked a man whom she knew by sight to get in touch with two other men, Kennedy and Cassey. They called at her house on April 13. She went on:

"I asked Kennedy, 'Was my husband kicked while lying down in the Aylesbury Police Station?'

Neither Kennedy nor Cassey answered.

"I then showed my husband's letter, and Cassey said to Kennedy, 'It is true. You saw the police kick Thorpe when he was down, didn't you?' Kennedy shrugged his shoulders."

In reply to Mr. R. P. Lewis, representing the Prison Commissioners, Mrs. Thorpe said, "My husband never told me he was being followed by the police. He was not addicted to drugs, and never said he was tired of life."

Mr. Galpin then read the following extracts from a message written by Thorpe on a prison slate:—

"In this enlightened age with the brand of Cain, hounded, threatened, bullied, beaten, I am just a suspicious."

"I am snatched from my family, the breadwinner, as Herod snatched the firstborn 2,000 years ago."

"Please read glass back. Dearest, I am giving a break."

Written on the back of the mirror in the cell was:

"My one crime was to marry a young girl of 17. My wife now 23. Three young children worship me. Always was loyal and true. I've left her with sixpence."

AN ARGUMENT.

Dr. Roche Lynch, the Home Office analyst, said he found about three grains of morphine in Thorpe's stomach. Death was due to morphine poisoning.

Mr. Galpin: If that quantity were hidden in the lining of a coat it would be difficult to discover?—Yes.

The point was important, said Mr. Galpin, in view of the fact that the police had searched Thorpe both at Aylesbury and at Oxford.

James Cassey, of Lonsdale-road, Barnes, S.W., an engineer, described how he, Thorpe, and Kennedy were arrested at the racecourse and taken to Aylesbury.

"Thorpe arrived at the police station ahead of us," he said. "I saw him arguing with a sergeant. There was a scuffle, and two policemen held Thorpe. They released him and he was charged."

"I did not see Thorpe kicked, neither did I see him on the floor."

Cassey said he did not recollect answering Mrs. Thorpe when she asked him about the kicking.

Frank Kennedy, a bookmaker, of Firth-gardens, Fulham, S.W., said, "I told Mrs. Thorpe that her husband was not kicked at Aylesbury Police Station, and she got a bit annoyed."

Continuing, he said he saw no blows struck on either side.

SCAR ABOVE EYE.

"When Mrs. Thorpe asked me if I thought he had done himself in, or if he was marked by the tanning, I merely mentioned he had a small scar above his eyes."

Sergeant Tobin, stationed at Wendover, Buckinghamshire, gave evidence of arresting Thorpe and two other men.

"Thorpe," he said, "refused to take his coat off or to turn out his property. I told him I would remove his clothes unless he did so himself."

"I advanced to take hold of his overcoat when he struck a sharp right-hand blow towards my face. It landed on my nose."

"I closed with Thorpe, who hit me in the jaw. He also put his arms round my knees and tried to throw me. He refused to loosen his hold, so I struck him once in the face."

BECAME QUIET.

"Thorpe then became quiet and gave no more trouble."

Replying to Mr. Francis Walsh, representing Thorpe's relatives, Sergeant Tobin said he considered it absolutely necessary to strike Thorpe, and it was entirely untrue to say that Thorpe was kicked twice. He made no complaint of the treatment.

Mr. Galpin: You didn't knock him out?—No.

Inspector R. Read, of Aylesbury, said that the blow struck by the sergeant was necessary. He searched Thorpe's clothing, but did not find any poison. Thorpe had no visitors while at Aylesbury and

HONGKONG AS AN AIRPORT

Having lagged far behind the times in the matter of airport development and preparations for the flying era, Hongkong is now putting in some stronger running. The laissez faire policy is temporarily in the discard and a few years may see the rise of aerodrome facilities at Kai Tak which will justify the appellation, the Croydon of the Far East. Work on the first stage has already been authorised, providing for a new civil hangar capable of housing the largest commercial planes at present in service anywhere in the world and administration offices on a scale commensurate with an even larger undertaking than is now considered justified. The full programme, in fact, provides for still more extensive ground facilities and it is becoming apparent that the predictions of Mr. Francis Love at the Rotary Club lunch recently were not the idle dreams of a hopeful enthusiast. The only real misgiving at the moment is whether Hongkong's programme will be sufficiently well advanced when the need arises. The immediate task ahead is calculated to take two years and as plans are already under study with several leading air lines for making Hongkong a base, there is obviously very little time to spare. The Government seems to have been misguided by the traditional conservatism and leishureness of Imperial Airways, which while having the merit of absolute reliability, as far as man can guarantee it, when a commencement is eventually made, usually cause them to be last in the field. That this will be the fate of Imperial Airways in Hongkong is already certain. And it is rather unfortunate, although it is doubtful whether an air-mail and passenger service operating on the southern route, that is, via Singapore and India, will ever be in a position to compete with the project now in course of organisation by the Eurasia Corporation, which plans a service, via Canton, Hankow, Sinkiang, Russia to Berlin, and thence to London. The only problem which exercises the minds of the operators of the Eurasia Corporation is the establishment of satisfactory bases in remote Sinkiang.

When the difficulties there are overcome, and it is a political problem largely—putting an end to civil commotion in the area—the eight-day trip from Hongkong to London will be within easy sight. But this service, which will probably be the first, will only be the first of several. All things considered, it is extraordinary that China is still without a regular daily service between Hongkong, Canton and Shanghai, and the deficiency is one which we cannot imagine will wait long before a remedy is provided. The well-known K.L.M. Line from Europe to Batavia is contemplating spreading its wings for further fields and will probably use large flyingboats for a service between Batavia and North China, in which Hongkong will play its part as a principal base. Mr. Love's own pet schemes contemplate a service between New York and Hongkong. We have said enough to indicate the possibilities. It is clear that if Hongkong desires to fulfil the air destiny mapped out for her, the authorities must needs look ahead a few years. Air lines will use facilities where they find them and if the Colony is not prepared, a good deal of traffic may be diverted. We must not place too great a reliance upon the fact that Hongkong is the logical crossing-point. We must see that it fulfils all requirements. In the meantime, we may congratulate our Post Office upon its adaptability. The new Singapore air service, steamer from Hongkong, brings the Colony within twelve days of London, the best to date.

Seeds of Scholarship

Sir Godfrey Collins, Secretary of State for Scotland, will meet with wide support for his contention that in the public elementary education system of Great Britain there is a considerable quantity of time and energy wasted over matters of no true value whatever. But it has often been said before that many parts of the current educational system are useless; where Sir Godfrey differs from former critics is in his readiness to specify exactly what in his opinion those parts are. When he comes down to details he will again carry a good deal of support with him. He thinks that it is foolish to devote excessive attention to the minutiae of grammar, and everyone will admit that the type of outlook that can be seen in "This was the most unkindest cut of all" only a grammatical error is not one to be encouraged. He regards learning long lists of early English and Scottish kings as a burden on the memory, and feels that children have to spend far too much time on solving complicated arithmetical problems that they will never encounter in later life. To many people the chief defect in modern elementary education will appear to be that it lays down the foundation without bothering to build the house. Grammar, lists of kings, and knotty mathematical problems are valuable only as preparations for something that is to be developed out of them; grammar is a preliminary to intimate acquaintance with the large ideas and deep thoughts that men and women have expressed in literature. Children have to leave school before they have time to become acquainted with the things to which Sir Godfrey's grammar and arithmetic are only the preliminaries. A partial solution of the problem might be found in a simplification of the school curriculum that would permit of a few subjects being "followed through" instead of, as at present, a useless smattering of many being gained.

WHENCE THIS BOLSHEVISM?

By E. L. ALLEN

There are two Russias to-day, one at home and the other in exile. Between the two there is usually no great love lost, but in spite of that, one would imagine they understand one another better than we sheer outsiders can hope to understand either of them. Hence it is always interesting to know what those Russians think of the Soviet who are in exile because they are not willing to live under it.

There is a review published in Germany under the title "Orient and Occident." Russian and German writers collaborate to produce it, and a short time ago, two representatives of the Russia which is in exile set themselves to answer the question "Whence this Bolshevism?" What follows is the answer given by Prof. Stepan of Dresden. I recast it in the form of a dialogue between a Western European and a Russian.

Western European: I don't see what you have to complain of, you know. You have brought this Bolshevism to your own door. What is it if it isn't the direct descendant of Tsarism, I should like to know. If you condemn the masses to misery and political impotence, sooner or later they will produce leaders who will show them how to take matters into their own hands, and that will not happen without blood being shed in the process.

A USELESS RELIGION

Russian: But what about this anti-God movement? The whole life of our people has been dominated by centuries by religion: are we to have that taken from us now?

W.E.: Well, but what kind of religion was it? It was a mere matter of ikon-worship, pilgrimages to Jerusalem, and so on. Did not Stephen Graham say that the religion of Russia had nothing to do with life, but was simply and solely a preparation for death? The common people dragged out their life in ignorance and poverty under the very shadow of your churches, and it never occurred to you that what was something to say about the suffering outside, ought to have made some effort to bring a decent human life to those folk. Little wonder you have gone over lock, stock, and barrel to materialism.

R.: So we have, undoubtedly. But where did we get this materialism from, pray? Have you not been busy preaching it yourselves for the last hundred years or so? Of course, you did not admit it at the time. You continued to say on Sundays that 'man shall not live by bread alone,' but the assumption you worked on on weekdays was that if he also got cheap fares on the railway, a fifty-shilling suit, and a wireless set, that was all he needed. And our intellectuals believed you, they came back to us in Russia and told us that you Europeans and Americans had found out how to save the world by machinery and 'mass-production.' We can see now that your machinery only turned out destruction in the end and that your mass-production was of the cannon-fodder. But that discovery came too late, unfortunately. And for what has happened you are just as much responsible as we are. You produced a civilisation without a religion and we a religion without a civilisation. These were two gigantic mistakes and when they met, as they did in Russia before the war, they produced Red Revolution.

WORSHIPPED THE TRACTOR

W.E.: You really think we are as responsible as you are?

R.: I do. Communism is just the materialism of your own wonderful nineteenth-century preaching against you with all the fervour of 'Holy Russia.' You've got to take into account the difference between us. You could be content to admire that brilliant civilisation of yours. We have to do more than admire. We wanted something to worship; we were ashamed of our saints and you offered us the tractor. So we worshipped that. Sacrifice is in our blood; we heard from you about large estates, so we sacrificed for these. We think we are doing something new, but we are only making your mistake. We are imagining that a sports club in every village and a communal kitchen attached to every factory will bring the millennium!

W.E.: But there's a lot to be said both for the club and for the kitchen, you know.

R.: Admittedly. So let us have them by all means. But we both have something to learn. We have to learn that a religion is worthless in the sight of God which is just a matter of so many pious exercises, and is not concerned to bring about justice between man and man. And you have to learn that even when every body has enough to eat and drink, enough to make him comfortable and happy, there'll still be something in the middle of life and death for which he has no answer, and he will want to find out whether God has.

YO YO AND— A PINCH OF SALT.

By C. V.-L.

UNTIL we saw P.C.—it, we were not inclined to take much notice of it, although we had seen it almost everywhere.

Our unexpected conversion happened this way. On a recent Wednesday, shortly after noon, on a No. 4 bus from the Varley, we were merrily bowling down Pokfulam Road on our way back to the city.

As we reached the lower end, opposite the old No. 7 Police Station, a turbaned policeman was seen standing at the junction.

We will concede there is nothing remarkable about a policeman standing at a street junction, much less being engaged as he then was, in directing motor traffic. But this officer held something which was certainly not a baton or whatever it is a policeman usually directs traffic with. He had it dangling from a string. It was a yo yo!

Something prompted a closer acquaintance with P.C.—and his plaything. At imminent danger of going to Hospital we broke short our journey and hopped from the moving bus. Our conversation to yo yoism can be said to begin from that moment.

Years ago we would have been irrevocably offended if anyone had suggested such a thing. The elixir of youth then had surged like strong red wine through our veins, and we recall we used to make fun of the fat woman living next door for her futile slimming efforts and at that grumpy old stodger at the Club furiously nursing a rheumatic knee.

To-day we are able to see things in an entirely different light. With the passage of the years, and old age stealthily but surely creeping on us, we have lost our youth's ego, and to-day are forever casting about for ways and means of arresting further senile decay.

We recall that well-known adage by Dr. Sawbones, who advises that to keep young, one must think and act young. The yo yo in the hands of the bearded cop gives us the cue we had been looking for.

The policeman, courteously entrusted the toy to us, and we soon came under the attention of a circle (Continued on Next Column.)

Maybe "Vinjar" could tell us how to get some of those sluggards to office of a morning.

Shortage of water was given as the cause for not swilling pig-wash down a drain. This evil is spreading. Hitherto it has been confined to the greedy pigs in the flat below.

Four hundred traffic summonses are served in a week. What a boon to the poor constables if these could be spread over all the case books!

So Hongkong is to become the Croydon of the East. Even so, we shall not be able to do without our Peninsula and Oriental.

There should be a special reward offered to the policeman who shoots The Hongkong Dog.

There is, we understand, no truth in the rumour that a certain local bowler is going to Blas Bay for a few hints.

Robert MacWhirter says he has no time for flying, anyway. Most of the younger generation are far too "easy come—easy go" as it is.

Birmingham has produced a steel ribbon rule which automatically registers any measurement up to one hundred yards. We understand that a local big game piscatorial expert has cabled for a couple.

Australia once complained that English Rugby was too tame, so they formulated the "Australian Rules." Cricket, however, is different.

A writer in a magazine asks: "What is best for the youth of to-day?" From enquiries we have made in local circles, the verdict seems to be "The Youth of To-day."

No, Ethel, starting prices are not premiums paid for haunted houses.

of admiring street urchins. In and out the yo yo curled, and with rejuvenation attained, we felt the years slipping from our bent shoulders, like a heavy and cumbersome load.

The policeman looked sympathetically on. To prevent our being disturbed, we verily believe he would have held up the L.G.P.'s car and all other on-coming traffic—such was the strong bond of friendship established by that little innocent toy.

Only once had we known the yo yo to have been debased through being put to a very mercenary use. Lawrence, irrefragable scapegoat, caused its fall from grace. Sitting one Sunday on the upper balcony of a Macao fan-tan saloon, he idly toyed with a yo yo.

We know he meant no harm, but that it was sheer force of bad habit which made him play with the thing at that critical moment, coiling and uncoiling it over the croupier's innocent head.

The croupier was with, up till then, had been losing steadily, but when (Continued on Page 15.)

STONEDFUSILADE OF BRICKS AND FISHMANY TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Johannesburg, May 19. Extraordinary scenes marked the conclusion of the election at Mossel Bay, when Mr. Scholtz, the newly elected Member of Parliament, was stoned and badly injured. He was being carried on the shoulders of admirers after the announcement of the poll when volleys of bricks and stones came flying from a side street.

The bearers, not realising what was happening, held him aloft as a target, but they too were hit, and Mr. Scholtz was dropped unceremoniously in the road. The showers of missiles continued, resulting in severe injuries to many people in the dense crowd, many of whom were taken to hospital.

When his injuries had been attended to, Mr. Scholtz attempted to address the crowd from a balcony, but a volley of stones, fish, and clubs caused him and his supporters to take refuge behind a bullet-proof glass. Eventually a large party of supporters rushed the attackers, scattering them, and beating one so badly that he was left for dead, and is now in hospital in a critical condition.

It is learned that the majority of the attackers were coloured men.

"I AM A CITIZEN OF
NO CLEAN CITY"ST. PAUL ON THE SMOKE
NUISANCE

"The housewife herself is mainly responsible for the dirt which disgraces homes and town, and for the deplorable sun-starvation of children," said Mr. Arnold Marsh, secretary of the National Smoke Abatement Society, addressing the Municipal Council of London.

"St. Paul, if he lived in Britain to-day," continued Mr. Marsh, "would say, I am a citizen of no clean city. The domestic coal fire is a relic of the really dark ages and belongs to the dusty past as much as the whatnot and the horsehair sofa."

"The average family makes, and deposits upon its neighbours more than its own weight of smoke each year. When the wind is easterly, the sheep in the Isle of Man are blackened by smoke drifting from Lancashire."

"At the present time the abolition of domestic smoke by the prohibition of the coal fire is admittedly not in the range of practical politics, but developments in the production of smokeless fuels and the cheapening of gas and electricity may very quickly make the reform possible."

AMERICAN LOAN
RATIFIEDSAFEGUARDS AGAINST
MISUSE OF MONEY

Nanking, June 16. The Legislative Yuan to-day ratified the American Loan agreement, with two recommendations.

The first was the formation of a Board of Trustees to hold the funds and control and supervise appropriations.

Second recommendation was that the entire loan should be used for productive purposes, such as the development of industries, agriculture, waterworks and communications.

A further recommendation was that no funds should be used for civil war or bandit suppression.

ORGANISED MARKET

Yau-mat Market has been in the Budget already for some years past and like many other public works has been held in abeyance in order of priority to the Government Civil Hospital, the Gaoi and one or two other items of greater importance.

But sooner or later Yau-mat Market must be given a start. Meanwhile, it is recognised that N. T. produce can be marketed in a way that would be profitable to the farmers themselves but what happens at the present time is that N. T. farmers are financed by people who really derive a larger share of the profit.

LICENCEES' OBJECTION.

The purport of my question to the Government was that they appoint a committee of men who would be competent to carry out investigations, such as those who are engaged in connection with the experimental farms in the N.T.s and those handling market licences. It may be reasonably anticipated that the present licencees of the markets in Hong-kong and Kowloon will raise objection to facilities being granted for the sale of N. T. produce because their is a vested interest and any system which might evolve as a result of the committee of enquiry may affect the profits of the stall-holders. This is a contingency that must be borne in mind.

THE FARMER'S DIFFICULTY.

But what is the farmer's difficulty? The question of transportation.

The Government's reply at the Council meeting was to the effect that transport facilities were already adequate, but I venture to disagree. It is true that adequacy can be defended in a very restricted sense, that is to say, by means of transport over the short lines of the railroad. The point that has to be considered is not railway facilities but actual transport from the producing villages in the district to the stations. While this restricted facility is true of the northern district it cannot be said to apply to the southern district, for example, the case of Chung Wa to cite one instance alone, where no railroad facilities serve the farmers but vegetables have to come a long way by ferry to the market across the harbour.

REGULAR LORRY SERVICE.

The greatest benefit to the farmers would arise in the case of facilities for transport from an interior point some distance from the railway station by means of a regular truck or lorry service.

I advance this statement because of the experience derived from the two successive Fairs of 1932 and 1933, when, by courtesy of certain firms, a fleet of lorries was provided for the transport of similar goods. It must be left to the committee the Government is going to appoint to suggest some means whereby lorry transport can be reduced to a minimum and economical basis. How that is going to be done I cannot say, but the committee will probably get all the information it wants in the course of its enquiry and examination of witnesses who might come forward with recommendations to aid them.

DEPOTS.

The next point concerns depots at Hongkong and Kowloon. Such depots can only be provided on Government loan and it is not too much surely to expect that when the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council can be asked to vote sufficient sums of money for the erection of these depots, locally called "lans," any member will be found opposing a vote within reason.

From these depots distributing centres might be established at points like Tai-m-sha-Tau, Mong-kok, Shamshuipo and Kowloon Tong on the Kowloon side and in Hongkong depots similar to those used by the Dairy Farm Company.

which are scattered from the Central district as far as Quarry Bay.

NOT IDEALISTIC.

My scheme is not an idealistic one. It was only on Thursday that I learned that at least one boarding house in Kowloon is prepared to buy N. T. produce in bulk while a large catering establishment in Kowloon is prepared to do likewise. That means that almost from the start the committee will be afforded the opportunity of making recommendations that will fit in with potential purchasers, in fairly large quantities, of what the N.T.s can produce.

The main thing is to save the middleman's pocket for the benefit of the producers of agricultural produce within our own boundaries.

It is almost superfluous to state to what extent vegetables and fruits can be improved in the N.T.s. Take for example one experiment which was the result of the 1932 Fair. It will be remembered that Major V. E. Duclos, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner for Hongkong made a gift on behalf of his Government of a quantity of pedigree seed potatoes which were distributed to the farmers as an experimental lot in Autumn of last year.

PRACTICAL RESULTS.

The following are the results of what has been achieved in this connexion in the Sheung Shui Experimental Farm of the local Government. The potatoes were planted at Sheung Shui on December 10, 1932, and according to Mr. H. Green, of the Botanical and Forestry Department, 104 lbs. of "Netted Gem" were planted in one plot and 87 lbs. of "Early Rose" in a second plot. Before planting all seed potatoes were dipped in a solution of Corrosive Sublimite for two hours, the strength of the solution being 2 oz. Corrosive Sublimite to fifteen gallons of water.

The seed potatoes were then planted in rows three feet apart with a distance of one foot between the potatoes. Dressings of artificial manure were given on February 20, March 3 and March 14 of this year in the following quantities:—Netted Gem plot, 36 lbs. Early Rose plot, 40 lbs. The potatoes were mature and ready for lifting on April 24 and the weight of the crops then from the plots were:—Netted Gem, 237 lbs. Early Rose, 399 lbs. The planting of the above mentioned crops took place in December, rather late in view of the fact that planting of this grade of seed potatoes should be commenced on October 1, but the results were generally satisfactory. Better results would have been obtained by earlier planting.

GARRISON SUPPLY.

"In this one item of agricultural produce alone" said Mr. Braga, "the military authorities can imagine, contract for any quantity for Garrison requirements in Hongkong and this Station. All that need be done is to encourage the farmers in the New Territories for the idea is one well worth developing."

If in one direction the possibilities of the N.T.s can be so profitably accepted in the interests of the farmer it must be left to the Government Committee to discover in how many more directions his interests can be fostered."

THE BORSTAL TIE

GREEN, RED AND BLUE

Borstal really has a school tie. It is green, with narrow stripes of red and blue.

One of the ties, neatly knotted and widely spread to display its full beauty, was worn by Mr. Alexander Paterson, a Prison Commissioner, when he addressed a conference of probation officers at the Central Hall, Westminster.

"We in the Borstal service," said Mr. Paterson, "are proud of our work. We wear no uniform, but we wear something that is generally better known in the music-halls than anywhere else—a Borstal tie."

There is, perhaps, a chance that Borstal methods will defeat any outfitter who seeks to profit by the sale of the old Borstalian badge, for, as the Home Office explained to a reporter, the pattern of the tie is changed from time to time.

It should also be explained that the ties are issued to the staffs of Borstal institutions to distinguish them from the other residents.

no poison was kept at the police station.

Dr. A. G. Gibson said the post-mortem examination disclosed no marks of violence.

Mr. Walsh for Mrs. Thorpe said he was satisfied that there was no kicking.

Dr. J. R. Pape, prison medical officer, said he examined the morphine stock and found it intact.

Prison Officer Coles said he found a slit in the lining of Thorpe's overcoat.

The jury returned a four-fold verdict that:

Thorpe died from a dose of morphine, self-administered while of Unsound Mind;

Considering the number of police officers in the charge-room at Aylesbury, the sergeant was not justified in striking Thorpe;

The evidence of the witnesses Cassey and Kennedy was unreliable; and that

The treatment of Thorpe in Oxford Prison was perfectly regular.

A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM.
This is a condition (or disease) to which many names are given but few really understand. It is simply weakness—a break down as it were, of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its cause (they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same; the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weakness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is essential in all such cases is increased vitality—vigor, vital strength and energy to throw off these morbid feelings, and as right succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY, THERAPION No. 3

than by any other known combination. So surely as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions will the shattered health be restored. THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRESH and new existence imparted in place of what had so lately seemed worn-out, used up and valueless. This preparation is suitable for all ages, constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a disease or derangement whose main feature is weakness, that will not be speedily and permanently overcome by this recuperative essence, which is destined to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it for this wide-spread scourge of humanity. Pepsodent announces a notable new discovery

—an entirely new cleansing and polishing material that is twice as soft as polishing materials commonly used in tooth pastes. Gives teeth a higher polish, brighter lustre—FILM stains disappear completely.

THE Pepsodent Laboratories announce a revolutionary discovery—a new cleansing and polishing material for tooth paste. For six months Pepsodent Tooth Paste has contained this remarkable new material. It possesses three exclusive virtues:

1. It stands unexcelled in removing dull, destructive FILM.
2. Its texture is invisibly fine. Thus, it imparts a higher polish to enamel—a brilliant glaze or lustre.
3. It is safe because it is soft—yes, twice as soft—as polishing materials in common use.

Yet in taste and appearance Pepsodent is still the Pepsodent you have always known. In results and safety it is new—brand new.

Pepsodent—special FILM-removing tooth paste

Removing FILM is, and always will be, Pepsodent's chief duty. Today's Pepsodent performs that duty better than ever before. Its new cleansing and polishing material brings a change in teeth' appearance within a few days' time.

Helen Wills Moody in England

READY TO PLAY Mme. LENGLEN

Plymouth, May 27.
Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, the Wimbledon champion, is quite ready to play Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen if permission is given by the American Lawn Tennis Association.

She made this statement tonight when seen on her arrival from New York in the liner Statendam and questioned her regarding the suggested match with the famous French player.

"I should enjoy meeting Suzanne again," she added, "but I do not think it would be a fair trial, because she has not been playing tournament tennis for six years and must be out of form."

"IN GOOD FORM."
Mrs. Moody, who is accompanied by her husband, Mr. F. S. Moody, a stockbroker, intends to play in one or two of the smaller tournaments before defending her title at Wimbledon in June, when she hopes to win her sixth championship and equal the record achieved by Mlle. Lenglen.

She has brought 15 rackets.
"I am not tired of competitive tennis," she said, "but I do not like too many tournaments, and we shall be going back in July.
Five or six tournaments a year
are quite enough for me."

Discussing her chances of winning at Wimbledon, she said she was in very good form, and she expected that Mme. Mathieu, the French player, would prove her most dangerous opponent.

"This may be my last appearance at Wimbledon—and it may not," she said. "I never make up my mind so far ahead. I intended to come over this year in any case, and the fact that I have had financial assistance towards my expenses has not made any difference."

"Leg Theory" and L.B.W. Rule

To
The Editor,
The Hong Kong Telegraph.

With reference to the Article (in regard to "Leg Theory" Bowling and the "L.B.W." Rule) by Mr. Howard Marshall in the London Daily Telegraph set out in the Sports Column page appearing in your issue of the 16th instant, and particularly with regard to the Table showing the percentages of "L.B.W." decisions to wickets taken in the years there mentioned, I send you herewith an extract from The Times newspaper of the 13th ultimo in respect of the match between Middlesex and Hampshire which took place at Lord's on the 10th, 11th and 12th ultimo, from which you will notice that, of the 40 wickets which fell in that match, no less than 14 were due to "L.B.W." decisions, namely, 5 on the Hampshire side and 9 on the Middlesex side—in regard to which The Times, in its report of the match, remarks:—"Seldom has such a total been written on the Score Card;
furthermore, the number of appeals
was far above the average."

Yours Faithfully,
"Historicus"

HOBBS RETURNS TO BATTING FORM

London, June 16.

The rejuvenated Essex continue to display fine form and their latest performance is the defeat of Sussex, who at one time looked likely to offer the biggest opposition to Yorkshire for the county cricket championship.

In winning by the handsome margin of 294 runs, Essex showed all round ability and outplayed Sussex.

Only two other matches produced results, and the rest were decided on first innings. Surrey, Lancashire, Gloucester and Worcester obtained five points each for first innings advantage, and the results of the programme left Yorkshire and Essex safely entrenched at the head of the table.

Scoring was again prolific, with Hammond and Headley, the West Indies batsman, hitting double centuries and eight other players passing the three figure mark.

A few bowling achievements were also recorded. Nicols of Essex took ten wickets in one match and Daer also of Essex bagged nine. Freeman and Sam Staples bowled with some success.

GREAT BOWLING.

Essex secured a winning grip
on the game when they led Sussex on first innings by 109 runs.
Essex compiled 259 in face of Cornford's bowling which earned him an analysis of 6 for 66, and then dismissed Sussex for 150.
Nicols and Daer bowling unchanged to take 5 for 67 and 4 for 36 respectively.

A Cutmore century helped Essex second total along to 297 for 5 wickets, when the closure was applied, and with Nicols and Daer again bowling unchanged and proving even more effective than in the first innings, Sussex had no chance of hitting off the required 407 runs.

Leicester, after batting first and declaring at 351 for 9, had the mortification of seeing Worcester overhaul this score and put 427 on the board before dismissal. A drawn match was inevitable.
Hobbs went a step further to wards registering 200 centuries, when he hit up 100 against Warwick. The Surrey monarch has now scored 192 centuries in first class cricket.

Surrey batted splendidly in facing a total of 401 and passing it by 56, but Warwick were never in danger of outright defeat and in their second visit played out time to hit up 167 for two wickets.

Gloucester, after aggregating 529, Walter Hammond leading the way with another double century (239), failed to prove so effective in attack and Glamorgan made a great fight to take first innings points. They managed to score 454, thanks to M. J. Turnbull, (122), his second three figure innings in succession, and Duck-field (128 not out). Gloucester tried hard to force the issue when they declared at 104 for 1, but Glamorgan just held out although they lost three wickets for 63
runs.

SHANGHAI'S BOXING ASSOCIATION

INTERNATIONAL BODY TO PROVIDE WEEKLY ENTERTAINMENT

Intending to promote professional boxing in a big way and to provide Shanghaianders with cards at least once a month or if possible, and with necessary material available, every fortnight, a group of 12 men, well known, and most of them personally connected with various branches of sport, have got together and formed a Shanghai Boxing Association of which they will be the Board of Control. The 12 men on the Board of Control are representatives of seven different nationalities and it is felt that with the confidence that will be placed in them, the gentle art of the cauliflower ear should flourish in this town in the near future.

The newly formed association of local boxing, Mr. J. Turner, partner of Seth, Mancel and McLane, who will be treasurer of the association.
These three will be the British mem-

TOTE MAKES PROFIT OF £19,187

REPORT FOR 1932

REVENUE DOWN BUT EXPENSES LESS

The Racecourse Betting Control Board made a profit of £19,187 out of the totalisator in 1932, but there was a net improvement,
compared with 1931, of £62,372.

As much as £4,017,678 went into "tote" pools during the year, an increase of £130,928, but so much of it was "away" money, which is less remunerative to the Board, that the net revenue was slightly less, and the profit was only obtained because of considerable reductions in working expenses.

It was stated in the annual report of the Board that the surplus of £19,187 has been applied in reduction of the debit balance of £43,684 brought forward from the previous year. Full interest charges on the capital debt were met before the profit was arrived at.

At the end of 1932, out of a total of 107 racecourses, there were only two under Jockey Club rules and one under National Hunt rules where no totalisator facilities had been provided.
The Ascot meeting again proved to be that at which the largest aggregate pools were obtained.
In four days the amount staked was £269,997. The largest pool of the year was on the Hunt Cup,
the win pool amounting to £10,299
and the place pool to £9,262.

NO SWIMMING INTERPORT

WHY SHANGHAI WILL NOT COME DOWN

Mr. E. Railton, Hon. Secretary of the Hongkong Amateur International Swimming Association has received a letter from the Shanghai Swimming Association stating that in view of the lack of uniform organisation of swimming in Hongkong, at the present time, Shanghai is unable to send an Interport team down this year.

The letter adds the hope that the whole of swimming will shortly come under the one organisation so that the Interport can be resumed.

V. R. V. ALSO REFUSED.
Officials of the V.R.C., who have been trying to arrange an interport swimming gal-la for September, learned last night that Shanghai would be unable to send representatives to Hongkong this year.

A DRAWN MATCH.

On courts that were always slippery, the Kowloon C.C. and the Ladies Recreation Club drew their match yesterday. Although the Hongkong players were the hosts, the match was played by mutual consent on the Kowloon C.C. courts.

The Kowloon C.C. were without the services of Miss Griffith, whose place was taken by Miss O. Dalsiel. The scores were:—

IN AUCTION.

MORTGAGED PROPERTY IN UNUSUAL SALEA block of five godowns with a site measuring 9,741 sq. ft. was offered for sale in Mr. E. V. M. R. de Souza's China Auction Rooms yesterday afternoon. No advance was secured over the upset price of $85,000, and the property was withdrawn.The buildings, known as Nos. 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 Praya Kennedy
Town, were ordered to be auctioned by the mortgagees, understood to be a Chinese bank, but evoked little interest, although in more prosperous times they would have been in great demand on account of their location.No bid was made at the sale, only two or three other persons being present in addition to the interested parties.This was the first auction of its kind within some months, the more recent sales, which have become numerous, having to do only with domestic or shop tenements.

"LONG WORKED SWINDLE"

BOARDING HOUSE THEFTS

Chan Young, 34, a storekeeper was sent to prison for two months by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, for the theft of a quantity of household property valued at $260.70. It was alleged he stole it from the Sun Ah Boarding House, where he had been employed for the past six years.

Detective-Insp. Fender said defendant had been taking articles one at a time and pawning them. All the property had been recovered except an electric fan, valued at $44. Defendant worked at the Canton office for five years, and was appointed in charge of the Hongkong branch when it opened a year ago. He never been properly checked by the management, otherwise it would have been found out before," he added.

The magistrate remarked it was a long and carefully worked-out swindle.

HARBIN DESIGNATED AS SPECIAL CITY

ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM TO BE CHANGED

Changchun, June 12. Ordinances are shortly to be issued designating Harbin as a special city and Mukden, Taitshar, Kirin and Newchwang as ordinary cities.

SENIOR T.T. FOR STANLEY WOODS

SECOND YEAR IN SUCCESSION

London, June 16. Stanley Woods, who on Monday won the motor cycle race four the Junior Tourist Trophy in Isle of Man, to-day won the Senior race for machines of 500 c.c. maximum engine capacity.

Woods won the same double honours last year. He rode a Norton motorcycle.

Twenty-nine riders contested to-day's race over mountains, a course of a total distance of 160 miles. The foreign competitors were outclassed.

81 MILES AN HOUR. Woods led throughout and finished in 3 hours 15 minutes 33 seconds averaging 81.04 miles an hour.

Simpson on a Norton was second averaging 80.01 miles.

Hunt also on Norton was third at 79.49 m.p.h. The Lap record was broken three times during the race and is now held by Woods whose speed for a single circuit of course represented a speed of 82.7 miles per hour.—British Wireless.

Harbin is expected to become a special city on July 1. The question of abolishing the special area of the Eastern Provinces is expected to be brought up in connexion with the proposed change of Harbin's administrative system.

Changchun has already been designated a special city.

COLONEL HELD BY BANDITS

$200,000 DEMANDED FOR RELEASE

Tokyo, June 12.

A ransom of 200,000 yuan in silver and immediate cessation of aerial bombardment are the terms submitted by the bandits in return for the release of Colonel Takayoshi Matsumuro, chief of the special Japanese military mission in Jehol, according to word brought to Chinchow by General Huang Hsi-ling, a regimental commander of General Liu Kuei-tang's volunteer corps to-day.

General Huang arrived there by air from Dolonor with a message from General Liu saying that Colonel Matsumuro was being detained at Tseuzuying by the bandits under Pa Chien-chu, but that he was receiving good treatment. There was no fear, General Liu said, that the captive would be killed, because negotiations for his release were progressing through Quo Feng-hsiang, chief of the local civil guards. He was confident of the Colonel's release shortly.

Colonel Matsumuro fell into the hands of the bandits on May 21 when the plane carrying him from Jehol City to Dolonor was shot down at Kuochiat, a small town west of Weichang.—Reuter.
